The very low rate of fare brings the trip within the reach of all and those contemplating going are liable to disappointment if they delay purchasing tickets until the morning of the excursion.

At 5 o'clock Friday afternoon Trivelyou Ungenyou, a bedraggled figure of a man 34 eyars old, was assisted to the Emergency hospital, says the Bridgeport Telegram, by a young Italian, who said that the man was sitting under a tree in the West End in such an exhausted state that he supposed that something was the matter with him and that he needed the attention Ungenyou was travel worn, and the clors saw at a glance that the man s in a state of exhaustion and was

He told Dr. Kraues that four days ago he lost his job. With $46 in his pocket he started out to look for work in another city. When on the highway a short distance out of Philadelphia he was attacked by four men who robbed him on the road.

When his assailants left him on the roadway half dead, he got up and started to walk to Boston. As he had no money to pay his car fare he said that he kept on walking all day and all night hoping to reach Boston some time. He said that during his tramp of four days and nights he ate very little. When he arrived in this city he was too exhausted to walk any more, and said that he went under a tree to lie down and die.

Controller Bradstreet and Bank Commissioner Lippitt Favor Business

State Controller Thomas D. Brad-State Controller Thomas D. Brad-street, who is understood to be a can-didate for re-election, has written to the business men stating that he heartly endorses the bill prepared by them. Mr. Bradstreet was a member of the commission of investigation appointed by the general assembly of 1307, which reported a bill, containing many of the features to be found in the bill prepared by the State Busi-ness Men's association, to the general assembly of 1909. Mr. Bradstreet's let-ter is as follows: "Replying to your favor of the first,

"Replying to your favor of the first, I-have read and reread the proposed 'Bill for the regulation of public corporations,' and find it comes so near the bill reported to the last general assembly by the commission appointed for such a purpose, of which I had the honor to be one of its members, that I do not hesitate in saying that I heartily endorse the important principles of your proposed bill, and desire its success."

An Old Hand for a New Place. There can be no doubt of the fitness of Dr. Hadley of Yale for the chairmanship of the commission which is te formulate plans for bringing railmost securities under federal oversight. He is a trained statistician with an especial bent toward transportation figures. As long ago as 1879 he was a lecturer on railroad administration and later he served as associate editor of later he served as associate editor of the Railroad Gazette. He is the author of a-book on railroad transportation and despite his presidential labors at New Haven, he may have found time in recent years to keep fairly abreast of the current discussion of traffic affairs. President Hadley has an absorptive mind. He was the valedictorian of his college class at Yale, and it is said of him that all he had to do, when there seemed to be any danger of the next man catching up, was to put on a little extra steam, whereupon the danger would promptly vanish. There are few if any students in the country today to whom, coming in the country today to whom, coming newly from other pursuits, the mastery of the statistical side of the railroad question would be an easier task.-Providence Journal.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Consulting the "Spookerinos." Mr. Editor: There is certainly great encouragement for the public in the second letter from Charley Thay-er. He has got to the point where he anticipates consulting the "spookerinos," as he terms the spirits of the departed, for "comfort, instruction and wisdom," to relieve him of the senatorial bee in his bonnet. What he really needs is "wisdom;" he already has "comfort" enough in giving "in-treme fever for senatorial honors. At all events, we hope the "spookerinos" won't spirit Charley away permanently from the excitement of the political area. Life would be dull without Charley. Let him have as an outing diversion only a pleasant seance of an hour or two with his "good men that lie in Yantis cemetery" and come back with improved wisdom and an insinuating smile to shed light upon peruating smile to shed light upon per fore the executive committee of the Mr. Plouf sings the pretty illustrat-d songs, Mandy, How Dye Do, and cuse Me. GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Fifty Years Ago Sister Mary Ignatius Lingard of Ansonia Was Professed in Ireland.

In the conventual records in Ansoni Saturday, July 16, will be ever noted as the day unique, for on that day was celebrated the golden jubilee, or fiftieth anniversary, of the profession to the religious vows of Sister Mary Ignatius Lingard of the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Ansonia.

Sister Mary Ignatius was born

Cooga House, County Clare, Ireland, of a family well known for its high social standing, which on the maternal sidhas given many evident members to different religious orders. One of he Sisters, now deceased, Mother Mar Gertrude, held the office of mother of also suffering great pains in his right side. An examination revealed that the man had three or four ribs fractured. On account of the exhausted condition of the man Dr. Krause took him to St. Vincent's hospital.

Mr. Ungenyon told a very queer story of his misfortune. He said that his age was 34, and that he had a wife living in Italy. Six years ago he came to this country and worked for a while at Boston. Nine months later he
